

4
A MOTHER'S GRAVE.

BY A LADY.

What a crowd of melancholy memories rise at the mention of this solemn repository of the Christian dead!

There repose in everlasting sleep the remains of her, whose voice breathed nothing but love and sweetest music, and the very touch of her hand manifested love's purest movements. At twilight she instilled in the minds of her young children those holy precepts, and that instruction which none other save a Mother could impart. Why are not her tender and soothing words extended to us now—because yonder grave has closed between our hearts and hers, and we can only love her image enshrined in memory's shrine. Yes, death has taken her from us, and we are left with the consciousness that we must pursue hope's pathway without the guidance of our best and tenderest earthly friend. Would Mother, that thou couldst read the hearts of those thou hast left, thou wouldst see that often in their brief career, the free repentant and tearful fall for the sins and follies they have thoughtlessly committed in the unguardedness of youth. The pure thoughts which thou hast cultivated in their young minds, have caused them to entertain contempt for falsehood and love for truth.

All is dark without thy smile, which so often reflected sunlight upon their paths, but now they have no one to whisper love and hope in their ears. They are exiles from their homes which they so fondly loved, and are wandering neglected and homeless, while strangers are sheltered beneath their paternal roof.

Oh all their hopes of earthly happiness have been, with their dear Mother, interred in that grave. They may often pass the little cottage, flinger by the garden wall, and bring scenes of past days vividly to their minds, and recall the time when their Mother was lying upon her dying bed, and when she committed them to the care of Him "who can dry the orphan's tears and calm the orphan's woe."

They have no glad hearth around which they can kneel, or no maternal eye to beam upon them in tenderness and pride, but they never fail to meet at this spot, and pour out the grief of their hearts to the orphan's friend.

What subject impress the mind with more solemnity than the thought of death and the grave? Oh, the grave! with what horror do the timid shrink as the gloomy prospect is presented to their imagination, while the more reflective mind meditates upon it calmly, as those appointed for all living. These are retrospective thoughts which carry us back with fondness to our youthful homes and to those scenes of childhood which are pictured all beautiful and fair to our visions. How endearing to us is each spot, where in life's flowery spring we strayed with our loved companions. Imagination loves to linger on the meadows, the grassy hillock, and the daisy lawn, and follow the murmuring streamlet to its source, beneath the mossy rock. But, oh! how low hallowed those all of these, is that one consecrated where the yew tree waves, and where lone orphans have repaired to weep, beside a Mother's Grave.

When they had wandered in other lands, upon their return their footsteps would still lead to the churchyard to the tomb of her they loved, and in sad remembrance they would have many a sigh. How precious to them every little flower that sweetly bloomed over the mound, and yet how pensive and solitary was every shadow. When in after years they wander there, and muse on childhood's buried years, her form will still appear to their imagination, and her voice will sound in their ears, inculcating those precepts which fell from her lips while glowing with life. Like a guardian angel she impressed them deeply upon the young hearts committed to her care, and sealed them with virtue's holiest influence.

Oh! she who was to their souls as Bethlehem's star, guiding their pathway, and shielding them from temptations, and opening Heaven through life's dark, bewildering maze. And now, although far from their native home, and harassed with cares, affection will frequently waft them back to childhood's scenes, and they will have many a sigh to view again a Mother's Grave.

The Frenchman proposed to kill him by tickling them until they opened their mouths, and then choking them to death with brick-dust, has found a rival who proposes to exterminate crows. Take a horse half two inches long, tie a knot at one end, run it thro' a grain of corn and throw the grains broadcast over your farm. The crow will swallow the grain, the hair sticks out at the mouth, and produces irritation and inflammation, which causes the crow to commit suicide by clearing his throat, for relief.

A contemporary says: "There is a man up in our country who always pays for his paper in advance. He has never had a sick day in his life—never had any corns or toothache—his potatoes never rot—the woe never eats his wheat—the frost never kills his corn or beans—his babies never cry in the night, and his wife never scolds. Reader have you paid the printer in advance."

A teacher in one of the Sunday Schools, was lecturing a class of little girls, on the influence of pious parents in the formation of youthful character. "Ah, Miss Carolina," said he to one of the class, "what do you think you would have been without your father and pious mother?" "I suppose, sir," answered Miss Carolina, "I should have been an orphan."

A backwoodsman and his sweetheart, the other day, happened to be in a drug store, when a party of gentlemen called for and drank soda-water. Backwoods didn't know what it was but made up his mind to try it, and after drinking a glass of the cooling fluid, he turned to the lady and remarked, "Sal, that's darn'd good; why don't you buy some?"

An exchange paper says the most dignified, glorious and lovely work of nature is woman—the next, man—and thirdly, the Birkshire pig.

DEMOCRACY.

A good name is a tower of strength.

The good old fashioned name of Democracy, which is applied to that national party in this country, carries with it a prestige of success. The abominably stupid name which the Know Nothings or Canevane party adopted when it sprang into existence, was evidence of the early decay of that party. Indeed, they became disgusted at themselves, and tried to be called Americans. The adoption of this title by a party professing the tenets which they did, was equally impudent and absurd. True Americans never profess such narrow views as the Know Nothings did. They favor equal and exact justice, and the largest liberty to all their fellow citizens, native or adopted. The bigotry of the pseudo American party was inconsistent with the true American feeling, and the radical non-sense upon which it was based has destroyed the party after a very brief existence. Look at Kentucky!—Look at every district where Know Nothingism had a foot hold. The cabalistic order is repudiated by those who were once its warmest advocates.

The Black Republicans, or, as they term themselves, the Republicans, have also adopted a name, expressive of nothing as distinguishing a party. In a republic all are republicans. The members of the Council of Three, and the Council of Ten, in the venetian Republic, were Republicans, and at the same time most deadly foes to the republican institutions, and bitterly inimical to civil liberty.

The most distinctive, expressive and popular name which any party in the United States has ever adopted is that of Democrat. The appellation is at once understood to all to mean a liberal, large minded, just and patriotic member of the Republic—one whose actions as well as his professions are favorable to "the greatest good for the greatest number."

The Democrat does not care for section, clique or class; he acts for the country and the whole country. His countrymen are the people, and for the people he labors, and to their interests he devotes his talents and directs his aims.

We presume it will not at the present time be denied that with the exception of the Democratic and Black Republican parties, there are no others which have any vitality or are entitled to the least consideration. The latter is made up of such badly mixed and poor materials that it cannot hope to stand against the former with its long established and well tried principles its glorious traditions and its histories of success.

The name Republican can never secure the adhesion to that party of the intelligent foreigners, as the name of Democrat has done for twenty-five years past. The Know Nothing element of Black Republicanism forbids that. The Republican can never become like the Democratic, a national party, for its former will its long established and well tried principles its glorious traditions and its histories of success.

The glorious name of Democrat represents principle. Its essence is the cause of human progress. It is bold and fearless in its defence of civil and religious rights for all. It recognizes and reveres the grand old virtues of the founders of the Republic.

The Democrats have an abiding confidence in the merits of its cause, and full faith that Democracy is right—is a great truth and must prevail.—Exchange.

THE NEGRO IN OHIO.

The people of Ohio, instead of bemoaning themselves about the introduction of negroes into the Territory, had better wake up to a consciousness that the introduction of the negroes into their State may become dangerous. The principle is asserted by Black Republicanism that from the time of the Declaration of Independence, which they say included them with other citizens down to the present, negro has been entitled to the same right and privileges with the white man, and is entitled to the right of suffrage and every other right which the white man is permitted to exercise.

We have been choiced by the readiness with which the effort to falsify the Declaration of Independence has been echoed by men who a few years ago looked on the abolition party as a fanatical organization, and who have been led into an unnatural connection by false lights—as false as that which would confer equality with the white man upon the negro.

We cannot believe that the people of Ohio are ready to sacrifice their rights, their political and social privileges at the shrine of fanaticism and a false philanthropy. While we would and ought to protect the negro in the privileges they have granted to him, they should rebuke his insolence and keep him in his proper sphere.

What does negro equality mean, when it is contended that the negro is entitled to the right of suffrage and all the rights enjoyed by the rest of mankind? There is a meaning in the words, sends a thrill of horror through the breasts of all who look to the happiness of future generations, and the prosperity of the country. It has been the Anglo-Saxon boast, the distinction between the two races was preserved and the perfection of government enjoyed, where Anglo-Saxon rule regulated the country. The difference between this country and the States colonized by Spain, where the victors incorporated themselves with the inferior race, has been dwelt upon by statesmen. It was followed by the discriminating mind and eloquence of Webster himself. It cannot be calmly contemplated. No treachery can be greater to the fame of our fathers than to impute to them any such intention for the accomplishment of their descendants.—Notes.

Important Land Office Decision.

In every case where two or more applications are made for the location of the same tract of land, and the sale is made at auction to one of the applicants, it is held by the Commissioner of the Land Office, that in all such cases a land warrant cannot be used, money being required, before a patent can be issued. The law requires that where more than one application is made for the same tract of land the register shall settle the contest by putting the land up at auction and the highest bidder takes the land. A very large quantity of lands thus disposed of has been satisfied by the location of land warrants, and the excess over $1.25 per acre paid in money. All such locations will be cancelled under the decision of the Commissioner, and the money required paid. Revolutionary Virginia scrip will be received in such cases at $1.25 per acre, instead of money whenever it is offered. This decision makes scrip much more valuable than heretofore, and will doubtless be in good demand.

WHICH—A TRAIN OR A CARPET-BAG?

—Mr. Makewight has gone into the country. We asked him whether he was going to take the 11 o'clock A. M. train, or the 3 P. M. boat—Neither, he replied, I am only going to take a carpet-bag!
